2. Confidential Information.

(a) "Confidential Information" means any and all data or information related to the Disclosing Party's business that the Disclosing Party holds in confidence and is not generally known to the public, whether in spoken, printed, electronic, or any other tangible or intangible form or medium, including, without limitation: intellectual property, technical data, technology, software, hardware, computer programs, source and object code, algorithms, formulae, licensing agreements or arrangements, product information, drawings, designs, ideas, inventions, engineering, manufacturing processes or plans, client or customer information (including, without limitation, names, contact information, contract terms, needs histories and preferences, as well as prospective customer information), business plans, contracts and contract terms, agreements, research and development, discoveries, business strategies, marketing strategies, financial information and records, business or financial opportunities, pricing, costs, expenses, revenue, margins, suppliers, vendors, employee, consultant and/or contractor information (including, without limitation, compensation, structure, policies, procedures and agreements), and any information related to third parties that the Disclosing Party is obligated to keep confidential and/or that is subject to use restrictions. When disclosed orally or visually, the Disclosing Party shall identify Confidential Information as such and summarize the same in a writing to the Receiving Party within thirty (30) days of disclosure. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Receiving Party shall comply with the requirements of this Agreement with respect to Confidential Information that is not marked or summarized by the Disclosing Party, as long as the disclosed information is or should be reasonably understood by the Receiving Party to be confidential or proprietary due to the nature of the information itself or the circumstances of its disclosure.

or (v) is independently developed by the Receiving Party without use of or reference to the Disclosing Party's Confidential Information, as shown by documents and other competent evidence in the Receiving Party's possession.

(c) If the Receiving Party is required under applicable law or a valid order issued by a court or governmental agency of competent jurisdiction to disclose Confidential Information of the Disclosing Party, the Receiving Party shall, to the extent legally permissible, provide the Disclosing Party (i) prompt written notice of such requirement so that the Disclosing Party may seek, at its sole cost and expense, a protective order or other remedy and (ii) if requested by the Disclosing Party, reasonable assistance, at the Disclosing Party's expense, in opposing such disclosure or seeking a protective order or other limitation on disclosure. If the Receiving Party is not lawfully permitted to provide such notice to the Disclosing Party or the Receiving Party remains legally compelled to disclose such information after the Disclosing Party's attempt to inhibit or otherwise limit the disclosure, then the Receiving Party shall disclose no more than that portion of the Confidential Information of the Disclosing Party which, on the advice of the Receiving Party's legal counsel, the Receiving Party is lawfully compelled to disclose.

Neither Party shall reverse engineer, disassemble or decompile any prototypes, software or other tangible objects which embody the other Party's Confidential Information and which are provided to the Party hereunder. The Parties agree to comply with applicable export control laws and/or regulations with regard to the Confidential Information or any products derived therefrom.

4. Maintenance of Confidentiality. Each Party agrees that it shall take all necessary and appropriate measures to protect the secrecy of and avoid disclosure and unauthorized use of the Confidential Information of the other Party. Neither Party shall make any copies of the Confidential Information of the other Party, whether such copies are hard copies, electronic copies, photographic copies or otherwise, except as necessary to carry out the Purpose; provided, however, that Confidential Information may be retained by the Receiving Party to the extent that (i) retention of such Confidential Information is necessary to comply with the Receiving Party's internal document retention policies aimed at legal, corporate governance, or regulatory compliance, or (ii) such Confidential Information consists of electronic backup media, latent data, or metadata consisting of non-logical data types that cannot be segregated and identified without forensic tools and analysis, and in any event, that any such retained Confidential Information shall remain subject to the disclosure and use restrictions set forth herein for so long as it is retained, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Agreement. 9. Return of Materials. All Confidential Information, including but not limited to documents, tangible objects, data, and code containing or representing Confidential Information which have been disclosed by either Party to the other Party, and all copies thereof which are in the possession of the other Party, shall be and remain the property of the Disclosing Party. Upon termination or expiration of this Agreement, or upon the written request of the Disclosing Party, the Receiving Party shall, subject to the limitations contained in Section 4 of this Agreement, (i) promptly destroy the Disclosing Party's Confidential Information with written certification of such destruction, or (ii) return the Disclosing Party's Confidential Information to the Disclosing Party.

A Party's duty to protect Confidential Information disclosed and/or obtained under this Agreement shall survive the expiration or termination of this Agreement for a period of three (3) years.

12. Remedies. Each Party agrees that its obligations hereunder are necessary and reasonable in order to protect the other Party and the other Party's business, and expressly agrees that monetary damages would be inadequate to compensate the other Party for any breach by either Party of any covenants and agreements set forth herein. Accordingly, each Party agrees and acknowledges that any violation or threatened violation of this Agreement by either Party may cause irreparable injury to the other Party and that, in addition to any other remedies that may be available, in law, in equity or
