SUMMARY

The arrangement places COMPANY A as the backend holding entity responsible for manufacturing, warehousing, logistics, and central shared services, while COMPANY B, its subsidiary, acts as the customer-facing franchisor operating branded outlets and granting franchises under a robust framework of inter-company service and trademark license agreements. COMPANY C functions as an exclusive external raw-material supplier to COMPANY A for defined territories and product lines, operating under a tightly drafted supply and competition-compliant arrangement that secures quality, continuity, and exclusivity. Across the group, functions, assets, and risks are clearly allocated and supported by related-party/transfer-pricing documentation, centralised IP ownership with controlled licensing, and a full suite of franchise, HR, compliance, data-privacy, and PoSH documents to create a scalable, legally defensible franchise and supply-chain model.
